You Hold It All: A Unison Prayer

Creator God, you formed us through the work of your hands.

As the dust of the ground was shaped into the highest order of creation, when you breathed life into the first human occupants of your beautiful world, you called the work of your hands, “good.”

Likewise, whatever our hands find to do, let us do it with all our strength, laying the results of our labors at your feet completely, to be used as you see fit. In your mercy, whether we are pleased with the results or not, we trust you to call our work “good.”

Through Jesus Christ, our Lord, Amen.

Written for the Worship for Workers Project of Fuller Seminary by Constance Cherry - theworshparchitect.com **